“Every young person should enter adulthood with the confidence, the ability and desire to make the world a better place”

The Curriculum Foundation is working with schools and local authorities across the country to help develop a curriculum that will engage all learners, challenge them intellectually, nourish them spiritually, encourage their creativity, and develop them as well-rounded human beings ready to take their place in society. This is the curriculum that develops in young people the confidence, ability and desire to make the world a better place.

The Curriculum Foundation is a not-for-profit organisation that works with schools and colleges world-wide to promote a dynamic curriculum that will put learners at its heart, excite their imaginations, extend their horizons and prepare them to be active citizens in a global society.

At the heart of the Curriculum Foundation are three core beliefs.

- that all young people should enter the adult world with the confidence, ability and desire to make that world a better place.
- that the route to developing such confidence, ability and desire is the curriculum
- that all young people are capable of benefiting from a well-designed curriculum which will be a major influence on their lives.

The Curriculum Foundation is a members' organisation for all those interested in education, and committed to promoting a dynamic curriculum that enables young people to make the world a better place.

How does it operate?

At this early stage, people are giving their time freely to get the organisation set up. There is an Advisory Panel and an Interim Management Group. By May 2010 there will be a process for forming a Management Group through the membership, and as funds allow, to appoint a CEO and administration team.

The Foundation charges for conferences and for the services it offers. Profit from this is used for necessary administration and the website etc. Any excess profit will be used to support curriculum projects and research
